As you can see from the letterhead, we've moved—housed now in our nation's capital at the Institute for Policy Studies, where our Chair/Senior Staff Member/Newsletter Editor/Etc. is a visiting fellow. All correspondence and calls should be directed here, rather than the former Berkeley address. The Berkeley crew deserves a whole lot of our thanks for taking over the Newsletter, for longer than they had bargained for, and doing it so well. Lots of people there did lots of good work over the year and a half they put the Newsletter out—Amy Gsasmeier, Marc Weiss, Linda Lillow, Nancy Leigh-Preston, Anis Markussen, Hilde Jeffers, Erica Shoeminger, Patrick O'Donnell, Kristin Bedell, Vincent dePillis, Linda Gardner, Nann Sacksman, Paul Sussman, B.T. Washington, Chip Downs, Daniel Faber, Phil Shapia, Vic Rubin, Anthony Bernheim, Marge Bennett, and doubtless a couple of people whose names we're missing—but David Wilmoth really gets the prize for being the one at whom the buck consistently stopped. Thank you, David.

Going onto a computerized mailing system, and now transferring that system from California to Washington, inevitably produces some woes. If your label is incorrect (but you're still receiving the Newsletter), let us know the correction to make. Look over the big list of #29 returns at the end, to see if you can put them and us in contact again, since we get some doubtless unfortunate errors in going onto computers, rather than representing true drop-outs.

This is the first newsletter we've gotten out since the postconference June issue. Summer travel, office relocation, and general summer doldrums were the reasons. But now we're ready to move, pick up on all the pieces we laid out in Washington, as reported in #29, and maybe even start putting the Newsletter out more frequently (than even our bi-monthly advertised schedules, which at the very least we promise to keep to). Should any of you want a copy of #29, which is now a basic document for the Planners Network—either because you never got it or because you're new to the Network—let us know, as we have lots of extra copies. We also have just produced a new one-page document "The Planners Network—What It Is," to use when people write inquiring about the Network or at public gatherings. If you'd like a copy, let us know. And if you have any meetings where you think it would make a good handout, we can send copies out to you.

ROSTER: An immediate task is to update our Roster (last issued in September, 1980). Our New, Improved Model will be slightly more formatted than previous editions so we can get a similar set of information from each member, and develop some capacity, manually or by computer, to pick out various sub-groups of members (by geography, interest area, type of work, etc.) as need arises. We'd also, for the first time, begin to get some basic "demographics" on ourselves, so unless you have objections, please jot down the appropriate information. We intend to do the roster in time for inclusion in the next Planners Network Newsletter (#34), which we want to get out in mid-November. Therefore—with no further warnings—the form must get to us by Nov. 15, else we put in stale information on you from the previous roster. Why take chances? Just sit down and fill in the form now, and send it along to The Planners Network, 1901 Que St, NW, Washington, DC 20009. And while you're filling things in, why don't you reach over for your checkbook and send us a contribution, based on the formula the new Steering Committee has recommended, as outlined in Newsletter #29:

$20 ($10 for unemployed, including students)
plus $1 for each $1,000 of annual income over $10,000

Please indicate on the form too which project(s) you might like to link up with, and we'll send further information (a summary list of Network projects is enclosed as well).

If, given the direction the Planners Network has moved, as outlined in #29, you would like to be dropped from our mailing list, it would help us a lot if you would just note that on the form and send it back to us. Thanks.

POST-CONFERENCE MATTERS: Generally speaking, we've gotten lots of mail since June, lots of mail, but in truth not enough of either. We really need to know what you think of the results of the May conference and the new developments in the Network. We need you to link up with the various project groups and begin working with them (#29 described all the projects and contact people and a summary is included here). And more people need to make an overt expression of commitment to the Network, affirm what we did in May, by sending in financial contributions (using the formula contained in #29 and on the accompanying roster form) and simply by writing to let us know what we did in May was right (or wrong).

AN UPDATE ON STEERING COMMITTEE ACTIVITIES: First, the missing bi-sketch from #29: Patricia Wilson Salinas: Asst. Prof. of Community and Regional Planning, University of Texas, Austin. Coordinates a joint master's degree program in planning and Latin American studies. Is U.S. correspondent to the Revista Interamericana de Planificacion. Teaches urban/regional economic development planning in U.S. and Latin America. Doing research on small business and the secondary labor market. Previously worked in Washington, DC, San Francisco, and Ithaca. Mother of one, expecting second in March.

The Steering Committee is presently putting the final touches on its own internal working procedures. Tony Schuman sent a draft to other members and is revising it for final approval based on their comments. The approved version will appear in #31.

Judy Kosy, aided by Donna Dyer and Bob Beauregard, is pulling together a report on the status of all projects approved at the May conference (and reported in #29). We are trying to provide help for any projects that need it, and develop funding proposals around those that need funding. A status report will appear in #31.

Several projects have already moved ahead. One of the projects of the PW Student Committee is many were doubtless unfortunate in going onto computers, rather than representing true drop-outs.

This can be done either on an "advance booking" basis, via a directory of Network members interested in giving such talks and their topics, or on a more "ad hoc" basis, by trying to set up speaking engagements, on short notice, for Network members who happen to be travelling to areas where there are planning schools. Interested Networkers should fill out the enclosed form and return it directly to Vincent Levine (418 Pier Ave. #101, Santa Monica, CA 90405) who is in charge of this Network project.

PLANNING SCHOOL MEETINGS: Priscilla Cobb, with help from some fellow students at UNC, is coordinating a project to hold introductory Planners Network meetings at all major planning schools within the next two months, so that entering planning students can find out from the outset that there are some alternatives to traditional planners' fare. If you want to hold such an introductory meeting and haven't yet been contacted by Priscilla, get in touch with her c/o the Dept. of City & Reg. Planning, UNC New East 033A, Chapel Hill, NC 27514. We can arrange to have a speaker and materials.
REGIONAL MEETINGS are being planned in all parts of the country by Steering Comm. members. Two—in New York and in N.Y.V.—are just being finalized. If you receive this Newsletter. If you are interested in helping to set one up in your area, contact the appropriate Steering Comm. member (see the meeting information in the mailing at the front of the Newsletter).

NYC: Tom Leavit in charge, has prepared articles on Urban Planning Working Papers and for a British Journal. The Planning article and Chapter 3 of his book, also a summary of a recent review of Urban & Regional Planning in an Age of Austerity, the book containing the papers prepared for the April, 1979 Cornell conference on regional planning, together entitled about 50 requests for information on the Network. To try to mention the names of people involved in the Network and let us know about any publications where an article on the Network would be appropriate.

PUBLICITY: The Steering Comm. also will shortly be working on getting publicity for the fall meeting of Planner Network in Bonaire, Netherlands Antilles. A short report on our May conference has already been published in Planning magazine (July issue), and Steering Comm. member has reviewed articles on Urban Planning Working Papers and for a British Journal. The Planning article and Chapter 3 of his book, also a summary of a recent review of Urban & Regional Planning in an Age of Austerity, the book containing the papers prepared for the April, 1979 Cornell conference on regional planning, together entitled about 50 requests for information on the Network. From KEN FOX (627 Quaisipan Ave., New Haven, CT 06513):
"The June newsletter was very interesting to read...I found the following, based considerably on a visit to England during June. In England it is much clearer than here in the US that right-of-way proposals are driven by developers, not the public. The old "taxi" law, which permits Sebastianesque publics to defend a miniscule ruling class group and the capital it controls, is a weapon...It is clear that a strong social and international pressure group is developing. Let us know about any publications where an article on the Network would be appropriate.

PROGRESS REPORT on the ENTERPRISE ZONE PROJECT, FROM MITT REAGAN: A letter has recently been sent out to about 15 percent of the people on the list. This letter suggested coordination of efforts to develop progressive alternatives to or elements of National Enterprise Zone legislation, and it provided information on the subject. Members of the group also received analyses of original and current Kemp-Kaplan bills, which are being distributed.

The latest Enterprise Zone bill was introduced in the House on June 3 and in the Senate by Sen. Chafee and Boushouch. Although Sen. Chafee has been a long-time supporter of the concept, the bill has received no attention. Some senators have called for a moratorium on the Enterprise Zones and development recommendations that can be submitted to Congress; via the Progressive Staff Caucus of which Network member Dan Lindheim is a member. Any folks interested in participating who haven't received any mail addressed to them at 1615 Queen Street, NW W7007, Washington, DC 20009.

A number of states have already passed zoning legislation in hopes of encouraging quick development in their side of the states, such as New York, will soon be holding hearings on the subject. In some states in which bills have passed, such as Connecticut, the hearings have been held in the coming by designated executive agencies. Networkers interested in being held in the state of their choice for zone program guidelines I drafted for use by AFSCME members on the state level. Anyone who wants the names of people to whom Networkers can contact can contact the above address.

The Network Project titled "What Do Network Members Need To Be Effective in Community Economic Development," wants to begin its work this fall, after the network has been organized in CED to fill in the enclosed questionnaire and return it to Donna Davis to (315 Penn Ave. E, Wheeling, WV 26003, 304/235-4634, Fax: 304/235-2196). Write to her at 315 Penn Ave. E, Wheeling, WV 26003, 304/235-4634, Fax: 304/235-2196. If you are interested in helping to set one up in your area, contact the appropriate Steering Comm. member (see the meeting information provided in the mailing at the front of the Newsletter).
REGIONAL MEETINGS are being planned in all parts of the country by Sterling Committee members. Two—in New York and N.Y. State—have been scheduled for the first week of April. If you receive this Newsletter. If you are interested in helping to set up one in your area, contact the appropriate Sterling Committee member (see the meeting announcement mailing at the end of this issue).

Planning Student Paper Exchange: From Nen Fink in the Harvard Div. of Urban Planning. The committee on planning studies at C.U. has suggestions from the Student Organization Workshop. The Network Conference in May will be coordinating a student paper exchange project. The committee on planning studies is writing to a mechanism for student papers, bibliographies, or works in progress to persons interested in the project. These persons should contact me about working on this project (particularly in the Boston area) should contact me.

PUBLICITY: The Sterling committee will also be working on securing publicity for the conference, in cooperation with Planners Network, U.O.C. A short report on our May conference has already been published in Planning Magazine (June, 1974), and Sterling Committee member Tony Ben has written an article on the Planning Workshops in a forthcoming journal. The Planning Conference and Urban Planning will also be given publicity. The book containing the papers prepared for the April, 1979 conference on planning and urbanization, edited by Alfredo wit, requests information on the Network to try the main public relations firm in New York City, although it is equally true that the ideology and politics of weapons are a weapon, very small rulling class group, the rhetoric is all of democratic support and the execution of the policies is all of dictatorial control. We want to be aware of the behavior on the tax bill, really agree with this premise that Reagan has been a failure. For us, as intellectuals and activists, this raises a problem that the tone of the conference statements did not properly address. In between, Chafee has been pressuring for a declaration of emergency, which he has the ability to carry through, and we can only assume that the goals for the majority of people and for organizing efforts around the country will have been achieved. The task of organizing a successful conference will be to confront the right-wing planning. The problem that faces us under Reagan, however, is that he has made such comprehensive planning to be impossible, by a combination of political and technical conditions, and with the position that once everyone had to leave him completely behind. There is also a strong possibility that the conference proceedings will be further implemented in the right-wing ratifying class planning. The majority of the public has no idea what the conference was about or why we want to continue with Reagan in a useful way, we are not going to win very much Politically. Support and incentive letters have been received by the Administrative Board and are being distributed to the University Committee. For more information, call the University Committee, 404 Franklin St., Suite 900, Oakland, CA 94606, 415-832-8300.

ADDENDUM FROM THE NETWORK CHAIR: As the victim of a similar action by the Harvard Graduate School of Design in the past, I can attest to the fact that curfews on public space are used to control the use of public space and to gain access to private information, information that can be used to control the possible national publicity and support efforts. Most Columbia faculty members, students, and librarians in the Arts, of College of Schools Planning Meeting at 22-25 W. 135th St., New York, 12441, where concerted national investigation and support are being planned.

For more information, Network members can contact any of the above listed faculty at 401 Avery Hall, Columbia U., N.Y. 10027, message at 212-620-4414. Network members can also contact Council on Planning, U.O.C., 1530 Cottage St., N.Y. 10027, for possible national publicity and support efforts.

John M. R. Davis, one of the 125 members of the Columbia faculty, has resigned from the faculty. I can attest to the fact that curfews on public space are used to control the use of public space and to gain access to private information, information that can be used to control the possible national publicity and support efforts.
PLANNERS NETWORK AND THE CORNELL AND TUFTS SUMMER PROGRAMS. For the past two summers the Cornell Development Center and the Planning Network has been sponsoring a Progressive Planning Summer Program. The Program is designed and run by members of the Network (Peter Cleve, John Forrest, Bill Goldsmith, and Sandy Kelman). Courses have included: Community Economic Development and Planning (May 1981); Neighborhood Housing Strategies (Chesler Hartman); Water and Pollution (John Forster); and Community Planning Theory (John Forster). Comparative Social Policy Planning (Gary Freeman); and two courses on Latin American development (one by CUNY Government, one by Cornell). About thirty students attended in 1980 and 40 in 1981. The work is intended to offer methods and tools for working with students, some working people returning for degrees, and staff members from public agencies and community organizations. The program received widespread acclaim and was seen as a progressive, offering four credits per course and taking place over a three- or six-week period. The Program awarded one-week work on site, covering political and environmental planning by (closed by William F. Whyte and colleagues). In the future they plan to offer more work on specific topics. Finalists are not aimed primarily toward people working in planning and related fields.

Similarly, for the past two summers the Tufts Dept. of Urban and Regional Environmental planning has also run a summer session for students, many of whom are also enrolled in the Tufts summer course. About thirty students have been taught by Network members. In last summer’s program, Rachel Brait co-taught an “Environmental Law and Community Planning” course (including an introduction to Environmental Energy Planning) (eventually canceled), and Michael Appley taught a section on “Management Skills for Planners and Public Administrators.

Tufts also has roughly doubled its enrollment, from 60 to 120, in the past few years because of its excellent expenditures and the short duration and lack of academic credit— it tends to draw more of the usual students and other planners.

We want to explore the continuation and expansion of these summer sessions and the joint Network/Planner Network work. We’ll need to know what kind of interest or courses Network members might want to learn at such sessions. We’re thinking of holding the sessions at the end of the regular academic year. We hope to offer a series of courses that are of interest to us and our colleagues and are able to attract a wide range of students. For this reason, we’re looking for feedback from you— the Network membership—what level of interest exists. We’d like to see a series of arrangements at both places—one week or less, three weeks, or six weeks—long with or without academic credit. We are also interested in a retreat or a "summer camp" of sorts, a place to which people might want to come, accompanied or unaccompanied, to be with other Network members and work on a specific environmental issue. (I am a nice place in the summer, and that’s a nice time to be in a conference, and that’s a nice time to work with people.) We should be able to arrange the sessions in a financially flexible way to make them easier for people with lower incomes to come as inexpensively as possible.

COMMUNITY OR CHAOS? The Western International Conference. Economic Dislocation, is being held at the Trinity Baptist Church in LA, Nov. 6-7. Of particular interest to Networkers will be a workshop on “Loss of Community Control in the New Economic Order” (with John Tobler). "There are no more Community Coalitions into Economic Planning and Development. Can the Community Coalition develop a role for itself?" Ed Asner of the Screen Actors Guild will give the wind-up speech, and the conference is sponsored by a wide variety of labor, religious, academic and community organizations. Virtually everyone knows that something is wrong. (Look at the results of the recent election.) We’re hoping to get feedback from you— the Network membership—what level of interest exists. We’d like to see a series of arrangements at both places—one week or less, three weeks, or six weeks—long with or without academic credit. We are also interested in a retreat or a "summer camp" of sorts, a place to which people might want to come, accompanied or unaccompanied, to be with other Network members and work on a specific environmental issue. (I am a nice place in the summer, and that’s a nice time to be in a conference, and that’s a nice time to work with people.) We should be able to arrange the sessions in a financially flexible way to make them easier for people with lower incomes to come as inexpensively as possible.

SELF-RELIANCE is the bi-monthly newsletter of the Inst. for Local Self-Reliance (11th St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20009). 500 copies are mailed every month to planners and public officials, and periodically in our newsletter, to remind readers of their existence and to bring them to the attention of new Network members.

KAPITALISTE is an annual publication advancing a theoretical perspective on politics and society, urban development and housing, and the contradictions in the welfare state, urban development, state policies, and economic trends. It is a bi-annual publication of the Institute for Social Research. The publication is intended to educate and inform political parties are some of the topics analyzed and explored. The current issue (9, 1981) contains articles by James C. O'Connor, David McIvor, and others. The cost is $12.00 per issue (SO Box 513, Berkeley, CA 94705).

A LISTING TRADE-CONSUMER GROUPS has been compiled by Stephen Dobrow (Fastighets Dickinson U.: 1000 River Road, East Palisades, NJ 07015). The publication is a directory of over 200 consumer groups which include a list of the groups and the work they do. The cost is $15.00 a year. This is a very comprehensive directory of groups and the work they do. The cost is $15.00 a year. This will be helpful to anyone interested in the promotion of community goals. Write him for what seems to be a free copy.

BLACK ROSE BOOKS is a Canadian publisher which puts out books on the urban question of interest to Networkers. Among the titles in their current catalog are Toward an Ecological Society (McIntyre and Whittington-Patrick); Socialism in the 20th Century (Van Couvering); The Impossible Quebec (Pierre Vallieres); The Sunken Rent (Gaines); A Study of Urbanism in the Developing World (Robert Runcie); The Economy of Canada: A Study of Ownership and Capital Goods (George Nijenhuis); The State: A Sociological Social Interest (David McIvor); and The Limits of Urban Liberation (Richard Stehren). Quebec and Radical Social Change (Dimitris Romalis); and Nijenhuis, et al. The Limits of Urban Liberation (Richard Stehren). Quebec and Radical Social Change (Dimitris Romalis). These are available from Black Rose Books, 302-304, 80 Black Hawk Rd., Santa Barbara, CA 93105 for $9.95. Bulk discounts are available.

MARY YOVEL (Oregon Geographic Information, 1025 Oregon, Eugene, OR 97404) highly recommends The Farm and Rural Environment (McIntyre and Whittington-Patrick); Environment, Urbanization and Sustainability (Nijenhuis and Dennis Gregg); Encyclopedia of Rural Discovery (McIntyre and Whittington-Patrick); and Dennis Gregg, published by the Inst. for Ecological Politics. It is available for $6.50 from the Inst. at 9208 Christian St., Fairfax, VA 22031. The book is: Power, Politics and Environment (5750) and Energy and Power in Your Community ($6).
PLANLERS NETWORK AND THE CORNELL AND TUFTS SUMMER PROGRAMS.
For the past two summers the Cornell Development Program and Tufts University have combined to offer a Progressive Planning Summer Program. The Program is designed and administered by means of a collaborative effort to attract students to the Networks (Pierce Clavel), John Forester, Bill Goldsmith, and Sandy Kelmans. Courses have included: Community Economic Development (Keith Hartmann), Housing Strategies (Keith Hartmann), Women and Planning (Tanya Irwin), and Planning Theory (John Forester): Comparative Social Policy Planning (Gary Freeman); and two courses on Latin American development (Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Anderson). About thirty students were enrolled in 1980 and 40 in 1981. The wide variety of students and the exposure to new ideas made the course a success. The program was planned in such a way that it would attract students, some working people returning for degrees, and staff members from public agencies and community organizations. The program is an example of the systemic and collaborative approach to social planning, a progressive initiative, offering four credits per course and taking place over a three- or six-week period. The program was developed in cooperation with a one-week institute on worker takeovers of plants threatened by closing (led by William F. Whyte and colleagues). In the future they plan to offer more institute courses, to be aimed primarily toward people working in planning and related fields.

Similarly, for the past two summers the Tufts Dept. of Urban and Environmental Policy has also run a series of summer institutes, sharing funds with other organizations to support this emerging field. In 1980, the course content has been less explicitly progressive than has been the case of the Cornell summer program, many of the Tufts courses have been taught by Network members. In last summer's program, Rachel Bratt co-taught an institute on "Banks and Community Reinvestment. seksi na Kernels: Dynamic Policies for Economic Energy Planning" (eventually cancelled), and Michael Appley taught a session on "Management Skills for Planners and Public Administrators."

Tufts also has roughly doubled its enrollment, from 60 to 120, in the past two years. This is due in part to the short duration and lack of academic credit; it tends to draw more of a diverse population of people who are interested in the field of community planning and related fields. We want to explore the continuation and expansion of these summer sessions and the joint Planning Network work sponsorship. We'd like to know that kinds of institutes or courses Network members might want to learn at such sessions. We're being very careful about the kinds of arrangements at both places—one week or less, three weeks and six weeks—longer with academic credit. We also want a bit of a retreat or "summer camp" of sorts, a place to which people might want to go, accompanied or unaccompanied, to be with other Network members to discuss some major planning issues in a non-urban environment. (Theda is a really nice place in the summer, and during the winters, house and class struggle, democracy, and the occasional flirtation with social planning, and other benefits. I want to find out from you—the Network membership—what level of interest we'd like to see in future summertime institutes. We can better arrange the planning sessions and other activities based on your input. We are planning two sessions this year, with topics and dates to be announced periodically in our Newsletter, to remind readers of their existence and to bring them to the attention of new Network members.

KAPITALISTAE is "an annual publication advancing a theoretical critique of the private ownership of property, labor and capital, along with contradictions in the welfare state, urban development, state policy, fiscal crisis, the labor market, class struggles, democracy, and the political economy. We want to arrange things in a financially flexible fashion to enable people with low incomes to come as inexpensively as possible.

DECEMBER 19, 1981
Ed Asner of the Screen Actors Guild will give the send-off speech, and the conference is sponsored by a wide variety of labor, religious, academic and community organizations. Looking forward to seeing you there. More info from the conference office, 514 W. Adams Blvd., L A 90007, 213/747-1522.

EX-CONFERENCES:

THE NATIONAL ARSON PREVENTION AND ACTION COALITION has held their 17th-18th convenings in Cleveland, Ohio. Information about the APAC can be obtained by writing to: Urban Educational Systems, Inc, 153 Milk St, Boston, 02109.

The National Arson Prevention and Action Coalition has been formed as a network of research, community education and outreach, and direct action to attempt to build local and regional networks, establish an arson prevention and control program, and to develop, propose, and deliver anti-arson technical assistance. NAPAC is administered, under an LEA grant, by Urban Educational Systems, Inc. Further information is available from: David M. Disbrow, Director, Urban Educational Systems, 153 Milk St, Boston 02109.

RADICAL PLANNING EXPERIMENTAL is the title of an experimental seminar R. Gasparatus developed for the Winter 1981 term at the Uni of Mich. Urban Planning Program. He sent out a call to the Network that New York Snowbirds might like to engage in some efforts to get in touch with each other. Run by Bob Gasparatus, who has never tried it before. Hoping to make amends, we are relaying his request: people who want to contact him should write R. Gasparatus, Department of Architecture and Urban Planning, U, Ann Arbor, Mich 48109.

CUBA TRIP ON HOUSING AND PLANNING: A special tour focusing on housing and planning in Cuba will include meetings with Cuban planners, visits to new towns and developments, and some general interest sites.

The trip will be coordinated through Harvard Center on Housing and Cenfuegos (several hours by bus from the capital). Cost of $625 includes round trip air fare from Miami, all hotels and meals, visa fees, airport taxes, and ground transportation. Summer, 1982. For more information, contact: Olga Angotti will be leading the tour from the U.S. Jil Herbert, who is working on her dissertation on planning and housing in Cuba, will help coordinate the trip from Havana.

The proposal will be arranged if there are enough people interested; cost would be a total of $1000 for those choosing to go, with the guarantee that the trip will only be arranged if we have at least 15 people. We will send out periodic information in our Newsletter, to remind readers of their existence and to bring them to the attention of new Network members.

HEALTH CHARITIES REFORM PROGRAM: Getting the nation's major health charities to be more aggressive and progressive is the main thrust of a new program at the Center for Science in the Public Interest called the Health Charities Reform Project. The HCRP will be looking most closely at the activity (and inactivity) of the American Cancer Society, the March of Dimes, the American Heart Association, and the American Lung Association.

The HCRP wants to hear from groups and individuals who have worked with and/or for the health charities in the past and from health activists whose campaigns for a cleaner environment, safer workplace, and other public health measures could use a boost—financial and otherwise—from the health charities.

For more information, contact: Health Charities Reform Project, CSPA, 1575 S St. NW, Washington, DC 20009.

PLANNERS NETWORK NEEDS A HELPER: We need someone in the DC area to help us deal with correspondence and mailing list maintenance. Four hours a week probably will do. We can pay if necessary, but sure would like a volunteer! Work can be done at your place or ours. The tasks involve: preparing address changes, deletions and additions to computerized mailing list, based on mail we receive from members each time we mail a newsletter; depositing and recording members' contributions checks; noting all communications from members, for periodic feed-back to the folks who maintain our computerized mailing list; sending out introductory PM materials to those inquiring about the Network and holding them in a "pending" file for a couple of months until we get confirmation of their intention to become part of the Network. It's real, that this has been done, and it's not all that difficult or unpleasant.

Call or write Chester Hartman right away at the PN office if you're interested.

HEALTH CHARITIES REFORM PROGRAM: Getting the nation's major health charities to be more aggressive and progressive is the main thrust of a new program at the Center for Science in the Public Interest called the Health Charities Reform Project (HCARP). The HCRP will be looking most closely at the activity (and inactivity) of the American Cancer Society, the March of Dimes, the American Heart Association, and the American Lung Association.

The HCRP wants to hear from groups and individuals who have worked with and for the health charities in the past and from health activists whose campaigns for a cleaner environment, safer workplace, and other public health measures could use a boost—financial and otherwise—from the lever of national influence.

For more information, contact: Health Charities Reform Project, CSPI, 1755 5th St. NW, Washington, DC 20009.

#9 RETURNS: We got a whole raft of #9's back—here's a list of them, so if you don't recognize any of them, let us or them know they can be returned to Neworkwood.

PLANNERS NETWORK SUMMER PROGRAM QUESTIONNAIRE

Please return (by Oct. 23, if at all possible) to: Planners Network, 1032 Qua St. NW, Washington, DC 20009.

A. I MIGHT BE INTERESTED IN OFFERING A SUMMER COURSE OR INSTITUTE BASED ON WORK I AM DOING OR SOME SPECIFIC EXPERTISE I HAVE.

1. Self-explanatory title or brief description:

2. Roughly how many sessions of what duration would be appropriate for this offering?

3. What months or weeks of the Summer 1982 might you be available to offer this?

4. What is the minimum total compensation and optimal compensation you would want for this? (If you feel you might be able to do it for expenses only, please do let pride get in the way of indicating this. The main expense of such a venture is salaries, and if people are able to do this based on political and psychic income alone, we can accordingly lower the tuition charge and make the offerings more readily accessible to those who might want to take them.)

5. $ minimum acceptable; $ (optimal)

1. What subject(s) would you be interested in learning about (be as specific as possible)?

2. Are there any particular people from whom you would be interested in taking these or other courses or institutes?

3. Academic credit is necessary; useful but not necessary; unnecessary.

4. What course duration would you be interested in?

5. 2-3 days; 1 week; 2 weeks; 6 weeks.

C. DO YOU THINK YOU WOULD BE INTERESTED IN OUR DEVELOPING SOME KIND OF RETREAT OR “SUMMER CAMP” IN CONJUNCTION WITH THE SUMMER SESSION?

1. Yes

2. No

3. Maybe

D. WOULD YOU PREFER TO ATTEND/TEACH A COURSE AT:

1. Cornell: / Tufts: / is or location not a factor at this point?

E. I AM (CHECK ONE) / working for a community group; / working for a public agency; / working for a private organization or a labor union; / an undergraduate student; / a graduate student; / a college teacher or researcher; / Other (specify)

F. I MIGHT BE INTERESTED IN WORKING ON A PLANNERS NETWORK COMMITTEE TO PARTICIPATE IN PLANNING THE PROGRESSIVE PLANNING SUMMER PROGRAM FOR 1982 OR ASSOCIATED PN ACTIVITIES.

1. Yes

2. No

G. NAME, ADDRESS, AND PHONE NUMBER.

H. ANY OTHER COMMENTS YOU'D LIKE TO MAKE ON THE WHOLE PROPOSAL? (USE ANOTHER SHEET IF NECESSARY.)
SURVEY OF WHAT NETWORK MEMBERS NEED TO BE EFFECTIVE IN COMMUNITY ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Please return as soon as possible to Donna Dyer, 154 Celeste Cir., Chapel Hill, NC 27514; or alternatively, write/phone (919) 544-2626 her with similar background information.

   - Getting funded
   - Financial management
   - Project completion
   - Ongoing management
   - Project and organizational evaluation
   Other: .................................................................

3. Were you able to transfer your skills to the community, and if so, how?

4. Would you be willing to teach or share with other planners the skills you have, either through written materials or presentations? Do you know of other resources that would be helpful to our effort?

5. What were the phases of the project(s) listed above in which you needed help?

6. What specific kinds of information or skills could you use to make the project more successful?

7. What would be the best form for such information?
   - Short pamphlets
   - Guidebook
   - Other .................................................................
   - Sample or case studies
   - Workshop modules
   - Lecture

8. Do you have other comments on how we can share our CED skills with each other? .................................................................
