Happy New Year from the YPN!

Hi All!

We have all been working together for almost 2 years! Some of our accomplishments thus far include:

- In June 2007, 20 people met in NOLA at the Planners Network conference, and decided to start the YPN!
- In April 2008, 100 people met in NYC at the first ever YPN conference!
- Chapters continue to meet monthly in New Orleans, New York, Chicago, and the Bay Area
- We have written several articles together, and separately about the YPN - see <http://www.youngplannersnetwork.org/publications> to read some of them!
- We have hired our first intern! Marvin Salazar, YPN member from the Bay Area will work with Alissa twice a week throughout the Spring.
- May or June 2009, we will have our second annual YPN conference in the Bay Area! The conference will take place in different locations, such as Oakland, Richmond, Emeryville, San Francisco and Berkeley. The focus will be youth participation in the creation of more sustainable cities. Please note - this is not the conference title :)

Of course, there are SO MANY MORE accomplishments to be proud of! This is one of the reasons why we have this listserv! In order to post a story, article, comment to the list you can send an email to youngplannersnetwork@googlegroups.com

Please take advantage of this resource to tell us what you are proud of accomplishing this year! All the best in 2009! Let's be in touch soon...

From PNER Peter Meyer, The E.P. Systems Group
www.ClimateChangeEcon.net

A recently launched online research tool containing objective resources and tools dedicated to addressing the carbon intensity of our economy through effective climate change policy.

This website is put together by PNER Peter Meyer of The E.P. Systems Group, an economic and environmental planning, policy development and analysis firm based in Kentucky. The firm's domestic and international projects focus on sustainable development by examining the economic, social and environmental consequences of ecosystem and climate change along with possible ameliorative private and public policy solutions.

Special Conference Announcement: 2009 Canadian Association of Planning Students (CAPS) Conference

To all those interested in Urban planning, Environmental design and Urban studies.

The CAPS conference is the largest student planning-related event in Canada and has been held each year in a different Canadian city for over 25 years. This annual event is open to students in urban planning, urban studies, architecture, landscape architecture and urban geography.

Its purposes are to create networking opportunities between students, faculty and professionals across the nation and to enable Canadian students to share, discover and debate current urban issues through planning-related lectures and workshops. Each year, the conference attracts approximately 125 students and 30 professionals from across Canada.

Entitled Micro to Macro, this year's edition will be held in Montreal from January 29th to 31st, 2009, and will be organized by the Montreal Urban Planning Student Association (MUPSA), an inter-university student association that gathers planning students from Montreal's four universities. Consequently, the event will be organized in partnership with Montreal's four planning schools and will take place in both French and English.

For more information visit our website: www.aeum-mupsa.org

Hope to see you there!

"A New Urban Agenda for America: Rebuild the Middle Class ", Available HERE. You can also provide feedback to this document which is intended to have policy impact. Please see the following:

Friends,

As we prepare for new leadership in America, we can't let the opportunity to rebuild the middle class pass us by. For many years you have been working at the regional level to create pathways out of poverty through public and private investment. Our working paper highlighting many lessons and examples from these innovative regional efforts is now available: A New Urban Agenda for America: Rebuild the Middle Class

It is our hope that this New Urban Agenda for America can inform and inspire our nation's leaders to reach higher with new programs and infrastructure investments to reduce working poverty.

Please feel free to distribute this to your local leaders, members and anyone involved in transition or policy formation. Partnership Board members Phaedra Ellis-Lamkins and Patti Devlin are working to share this information in Washington DC over the coming weeks, and would appreciate any contacts through our network and allies to the transition or legislative process.

Please send contact info and ideas to Kathleen Mulligan-Hansel at kmh@communitybenefits.org.

SBS Diversity Postdoctoral Fellowships

Ohio State University, College of Social and Behavioral Sciences

The College of Social and Behavioral Sciences at The Ohio State University is pleased to announce the establishment of the SBS Diversity Postdoctoral Fellowship Program. The goals of the Fellowship Program are to support promising scholars who are committed to diversity in the academy and to prepare those scholars to enter tenure track faculty positions. We are particularly interested in receiving applications from individuals who are members of groups that historically have been underrepresented in the American professoriate.

Fellows will be affiliated with one of the eight academic units of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences: Anthropology, Economics, Geography, Communication, Political Science, Psychology, Sociology, and Speech and Hearing Science (additional information at <http://sbs.osu.edu>). The College also houses four interdisciplinary research units: the Criminal Justice Research Center, the Center for Human Resource Research, the Center for Urban and Regional Analysis, and the Initiative in Population Research. Fellows may also have the opportunity to participate in the activities of the Kirwan Institute for Race and Ethnicity, a multidisciplinary center founded jointly by the Colleges of Social and Behavioral Sciences; Humanities; and Law.

Eligibility: Applicants must have completed all requirements for a doctoral degree in the social sciences by August 2009. Preference will be given to individuals who are within five years of their degree. Applicants must be committed to an academic career. Applicants must be a citizen of the United States.

Awards: Up to three fellowships will be awarded. The appointments are intended for two years, with re-appointment for the second year contingent upon a successful performance review. The appointments will begin in September 2009. The fellowships provide a $40,000 annual stipend, university medical benefits, and some support for travel and research expenses.

Application Process: Required application materials: (1) Applicants should clearly identify a unit within the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences at OSU with which they would be affiliated during the Fellowship period, and are encouraged to suggest one or more tenured faculty members within that unit who could serve as a host and mentor; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) a one page dissertation abstract; (4) a statement outlining the specific research proposed to be undertaken during the Fellowship period, and the significance of that research (four-page limit, double-spaced); (5) a personal statement describing the applicant's background and commitment to the goal of diversity in higher education (three-page limit, double-spaced). Applicants should submit all of these materials electronically in Microsoft Word. (Please identify all of the documents with the last name and document type, e.g., smithcv.doc or smithresearchstatement.doc.) In addition, three letters of recommendation should be submitted electronically.

All materials must be received by March 15, 2009, and should be submitted to sbspostdocs@polisci.osu.edu. Questions can be directed to Prof. Kathleen M. McGraw (mcgraw.36@osu.edu).

Doctoral Assistantship in Environmental Design and Planning Clemson University, College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities

The College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities at Clemson University is accepting applications for five three-year assistantships for the pursuit of the Ph.D. degree in Environmental Design and Planning. The fellowship provides a stipend of $18,800 payable per year plus tuition, and may be renewed for up to two years.

The objective of the program is to prepare a new generation of academics and professionals to deal with the diverse and complex issues relating to the next round of human development. The program is interdisciplinary drawing a core from the fields of architecture, landscape architecture, planning, and construction science. We have identified focus areas of: Regional & Community Development & Design; Built Environment and Health; Restoration, Sustainability & Landscape Ecology; Technology, Materials and Construction Processes. It is expected that graduates of this program will be well prepared to address increasingly complex issues relating to human settlement patterns and the built environment. I hope you will share it with students who are or might be considering application to a doctoral program for the fall semester of 2009.

Clemson University, the land grant University of South Carolina, has an enrollment of over 17,500 students of whom over 4,000 pursue advanced degrees in 74 different areas of graduate studies. Strategically located within a few miles of Interstate 85, mid-way between Atlanta, Georgia, and Charlotte, North Carolina, Clemson offers easy access to major urban centers, coastal areas and the Appalachian mountains.

More information about the University can be found at our web site at www.clemson.edu, and details about the PhD program HERE.
