

New Orleans Ward 9 after Katrina
courtesy George Frantz.

Visit progressivecity.net for our online magazine.

PN Conference 2013 Rockaways Mobile workshop courtesy Elisbetta Di Stefano.

Attendees of PN Conference 2014 in Juarez, MX
courtesy Gabriel Diaz.

There is a constant need for progressives to work together to oppose forces that increase the injustices and inequities in our world. PN's hundreds of members contribute to the Progressive City online magazine, communicate with on-line listservs and an e-newsletter, take part in annual conferences, and organize locally in PN chapters. Whether face-to-face, in print, or online, PN'ers are part of a network that shares progressive ideas and experiences.

How you can get involved

Join Planners Network - For as little as $25 annual dues (student/low income) you'll receive a monthly newsletter, discounts to conferences, and contribute to a planning organization that consistently promotes economic, social and environmental justice.

Go to <http://www.plannersnetwork.org/join-pn/>

Submit an article to Progressive City - Progressive City seeks articles that describe and analyze progressive physical, social, economic and environmental planning in urban and rural areas. Articles may be up to 2,000 words.

Visit <http://www.progressivecity.net/contact>

Become a University Representative - Help introduce students and faculty to PN and progressive planning by serving as a PN rep at your university.

Email chapters@plannersnetwork.org

Follow us on Facebook - In addition to local chapter Facebook pages, Planners Network maintains an active Facebook page with news about issues progressive planners and activists care about.

Visit <https://www.facebook.com/PlannersNetwork/>