Planners Network will be welcoming more than 150 attendees to the highly anticipated conference, including faculty, students, researchers, and professional planners. Representing more than five countries, attendees will experience over 35 plenary sessions, paper sessions, roundtable discussions, workshops, mobile community tours, and networking opportunities to keep attendees engaged for the three-day span of this event.

The Planners Network Conference is an opportunity for researchers, practitioners, and organizers to exchange ideas and practices relating to progressive planning, to strengthen their respective work, and to grow a community of practice and mutual learning.

Planners Network is a non-profit organization and does not provide travel support or research grants for presentations at this conference.

Please contact me with further questions.

Sincerely,

Norma Rantisi

Co-Chair, Planners Network

Professor, Concordia University

2026 Bousfield Distinguished Visitor in Planning, University of Toronto
