PN CHAPTER UPDATES

New PN Chapter in Buffalo

A new Planners Network chapter has formed at the University of Buffalo, State University of New York. The chapter is open to both students and non-students. For more information or to join, contact apblair@buffalo.edu.

Calling all PNers from the San Francisco Bay Area!

The Bay Area Planners Network chapter has been reactivated. For further information, contact the new chapter coordinator, Holly Pearson: ph: (415) 690-0409, email:

Update from the New Guelph PN Chapter

PNg, the new local chapter of Planners Network in Guelph, now has an online home at www.pnguelph.ning.com. Still very much in its infancy, the network page, which is hosted on the Ning platform, allows members to post notes and events or share photos and videos. Members can also blog or start their own project or research groups. As the site grows, PNg is hoping it will help Planners Network reach the wider university and Guelph community. We are also encouraging PN members across North America to join the discussion. Check us out and sign up at pnguelph.ning.com or contact Morgan at pnguelph@gmail.com for more information.

PN MEMBER UPDATES

From PNER Chester Hartman

I have begun work with the National Council of Urban Indian Health. One of their immediate needs is to get better information on the Indian populations in the cities where they run health programs. Are there any PNERs in those cities who either know something about this or could assist in generating the needed information?

The cities are: Omaha, NE; Denver, CO; Pierre, SD; Albuquerque, NM; Minneapolis, MN; Detroit, MI; Milwaukee, WI; Chicago, IL; Billings, MT; Butte, MT; Missoula, MT; Helena, MT; Bakersfield, CA; Great Falls, MT; Los Angeles, CA; Oakland, CA; Sacramento, CA; San Diego, CA; San Francisco, CA; San Jose, CA; Santa Barbara, CA; Manteca, CA; Jamaica Plain NYC; Boston, MA; Baltimore, MD; Flagstaff, AZ; Dallas, TX; Wichita, KS; Oklahoma City, OK; Tulsa, OK; Reno, NV; Phoenix, AZ; Salt Lake City, UT; Portland, OR; Seattle, WA; Spokane, WA; Tucson, AZ; Fresno, CA.

If you are interested or have information, please contact me at: chartman@prrac.org .

From PNER Russel Feldman

PNER Russel Feldman has just been elected as chair of the board of trustees of the Boston Architectural College. The school has a unique 125 year history and mission - it is taught by practitioners and requires that all students work in the field as they study. With graduate and undergraduate programs in architecture landscape architecture, interior design and design studies and a broad number of certificate programs, the BAC is the largest independent design school in the country. Russel continues to serve on the board of the Massachusetts chapter of the AIA and is president of TBA Architects, Inc., a full practice planning and architecture firm with offices in the Boston and San Francisco areas.

CALL FOR PAPERS

/thirdspace: a journal of feminist theory and culture/

The editors of /thirdspace: a journal of feminist theory and culture/ invite submissions for our forthcoming issue on gender, sport, and the Olympics.

Prompted by the upcoming 2010 Winter Olympics in Vancouver, we are interested in exploring the central role which gender and sexuality play in shaping ideas about athleticism, sport culture, and the body, and the significant ways in which athletic events such as the Olympics work to transform conceptions of public space, national boundaries and identities, and gendered self-presentations and performances.

This issue invites contributions on:

- the 2010 Winter Olympics in Vancouver
- sport, athleticism, and ability
- the Para Olympics
- LGBT participation in athletics and the Olympics
- legal impacts on gender and sport (i.e. Title IX legislation in the United States)
- sport and masculinities/femininities
- the role of gender in sporting competition
- gendered perspectives on Olympic events
- the use of prosthetics and technologies in athletic competition
- the impact of the Olympics on the environment
- sports/the Olympics and the use of public space, including displacement of individuals/communities, the environment, and urban renewal
- and other topics relevant to the theme of gender, sport, and the Olympics.

We welcome submissions from a wide range of disciplinary and geographical perspectives. Submissions from researchers working within, or among, the disciplines of geography, sociology, literature, area studies, cultural studies, film/ media studies, art, history, education, law, and women's/gender studies are particularly encouraged.

We accept the submission of work from scholars of any rank or affiliation, and encourage submissions from emerging feminist scholars, including graduate students.

All submissions to the journal must be submitted electronically through our online submission process. All submissions are peer-reviewed by established, senior feminist scholars. For more information on our publishing policies see here.

To submit: Please follow our online submission process here. Deadline: May 15, 2009. For more information, please contact us at info@thirdspace.ca.

activities of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). While there are numerous public institutions whose activities bear directly on issues of environmental justice, EPA has jurisdiction over many of the core issues, especially the prevention and control of industrial pollution, that have given rise to the environmental justice movement.

Environmental justice embodies a goal of achieving healthy, sustainable communities for all people. As part of this goal, environmental justice calls for equal protection for all people under the nation's environmental laws.

Trainer/Technical Assistance Provider

International Budget Partnership (IBP)

Washington, D.C.

In over 100 countries around the world, think-tanks, NGOs, community-based organizations and citizens have launched a movement to demand greater transparency and accountability in government revenues and expenditures. The International Budget Partnership was established in 1997, within the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities in Washington DC, to support this growing movement in order to improve governance and reduce poverty in developing countries.

Over the past ten years, the IBP has pioneered global efforts to support independent budget monitoring by providing a combination of training and technical assistance, financial grants, comparative research, peer networking, and a global repository of information on this growing field. The IBP works closely with a growing network of partner civil society organizations in over 80 countries in Africa, Asia, and Latin America and, operates from offices in Washington DC, Mexico City, Mumbai and Cape Town.

IBP is seeking a trainer / technical assistance to work with its international team.

Knowledge, education and experience: Post-graduate qualification or equivalent experience in applied public finance, public policy or related subject; In-depth knowledge and experience in training methods, training provision, facilitation and curriculum development; At least three years experience in providing training in applied budget analysis and advocacy work, applied public finance, or public policy-related training; Several years of experience working in an international development environment; Ability to work in English and one other language is required, e.g. French, Spanish, and Portuguese.

NEW YORK

Program Officer, Land Use Planning & Community Development Ford Foundation, New York, NY

The Program Officer will be responsible for implementing, monitoring, and coordinating grant making activities in the Land Use Planning and Community Development portfolio, which seeks to combine housing and community development finance tools with planning and land management strategies to develop a more powerful approach to urban revitalization, neighborhood stabilization, and affordable housing production.

The program strategy within this portfolio is designed to help improve the rules governing affordable housing and community development activities to produce better outcomes for low-income communities and residents. In distressed areas with weak market conditions, the strategy would include reforming governmental and non-profit property management systems to prevent vacant properties from becoming persistent blight. In economically strong communities, efforts would focus more on tools for assembling land and property for affordable housing production in high-opportunity areas.

Working closely with the Director and other Program Officers in the Urban Regeneration and Opportunity Unit, the Program Officer will develop grant making and other program activities to implement three strategies to achieve program goals: 1) supporting research and communications efforts to build the case for reforms, 2) fostering a civic network of advocates and stakeholders who will promote improved policies and practices, and 3) deploying finance tools with planning strategies to leverage scarce resources for improved outcome.

To Apply: Please send inquiries, nominations, and applications (consisting of resume and cover letter) by May 29, 2009 to Lauren Gumbs at lgumbs@gumbspartners.com.
