

Center for Community Planning and Development

Inaugural Forum

Advocacy and Community Planning: Past, Present and Future

Advocacy Planning began in the 1960's when urban planners joined the Civil Rights movement to fight community displacement. Today advocates for social and environmental justice work in a broad array of disciplines, including social work, public health, urban policy, and the social sciences. Speakers from Boston, New York and Los Angeles will explore new issues and approaches to advocacy.

November 14th, 5:00 pm

Doors open at 4:30

Hunter College School of Social Work
129 East 79th Street, Room #1010

Refreshments Served

Please RSVP to ccpd@hunter.cuny.edu

Presenters:

Tom Angotti

CCPD Director, Professor of Urban Affairs and Planning, Hunter College
WHAT IS ADVOCACY PLANNING?

Marie Kennedy

Professor Emerita of Community Planning, College of Public and Community Service
University of Massachusetts Boston
ADVOCACY TODAY

Romel Pascual

Associate Director for Environment
Office of Mayor Antonio R. Villaraigosa, Los Angeles
THE FUTURE OF ADVOCACY

With Comments By:

Ron Shiffman

Professor of Urban Planning, Pratt Institute

Elizabeth Yeampierre

Executive Director, UPROSE
Co-Chair, NYC Environmental Justice Alliance

Sponsored by the Independence Community Foundation and Progressive Planning Magazine
Center for Community Planning and Development, Hunter College

695 Park Ave., Room W1611, New York, NY 10021 P: 212-650-5593 F: 212-772-5593
ccpd@hunter.cuny.edu